Since the last decade, we have been witnessing sudden and surprising changes in world-wide economic scenario – the death of Communism, the banking financial crisis in the western capitalist world and now the European crisis. The latter trouble seems to suggest that the Capitalist model of economy is also gasping its last death-pangs.

To add to the woes of the capitalist model, which requires the support of rabid consumerism for its prosperity, and which in turn depletes natural resources and dumps massive unavoidable garbage and pollutants in its wake, we are witnessing unprecedented climatic changes and environmental disasters in this world.

All this suggests that we have to urgently seek a new economic model, which will give happiness, peace and prosperity not only to humanity but all creatures on this planet earth – in line with our ancient Indian belief of 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam ' – the whole world is but one family.

At one time, it was said India was a land flowing with gold, milk and honey. "How we did it then, and how we can do it in future too, will be the gist of the lecture by:

Swami Vigyananand ji
